Haskins submits resignation

By RICH ADAMS
Hancock North Central Principal Thad W. Haskins tendered his resignation to the Hancock County School Board this week, saying in his letter of resignation that "the superintendent should be able to recommend the man of his choice" for that position.
The board Monday evening took under advisement Haskins' request that the second year of his current contract be considered void and that he be allowed to resign as of June 30, 1980.
The action comes after Superintendent Terry Randolph was defeated in a bid for reelection to that post in August by Billy Sills in the Democratic primary election.
Haskins then sought the position of superintendent as an independent

Interagency agreement amended

By WAYNE DUCUMB JR.

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors and the County Port and Harbor Commission amended their conditional interagency assent to the Coastal Zone Management (CZM) Bill saving $25 million in 1980 federal grants and loans earmarked for Jackson and Harrison Counties.

The Monday afternoon decision came after Coast officials agreed to increase Hancock County's fund consideration from 15 to 25 per cent.

Wilson Webre, director of the County Port and Harbor Commission, pointed out sections and statements in the initial interagency agreement rejected by CZM officials during the Monday morning meeting with supervisors.

"Hancock County can live with the revisions but, if we don't go along with this bill we're going to get a black eye from a lot of these agencies," Webre said.

Dr. Richard Leard, director of the Bureau of Marine Resources (BMR) explained, "If we don't change the interagency agreement the program would be terminated and the federal government would reprogram the funds ($25 million in 1980 grants and loans) for use in other areas of the U.S."

John Rutherford, Hancock County chancery clerk, said, "We've made all the applications for projects and none of these have been approved."

"A lot more funds can be available for planning than for actual construction," Laird explained.

Supervisor Bert Courge said, "We need a sand beach because the Corps of Engineers will only pump in a sand berm for storm protection... we could combine the application for a recreational beach also."

Laird responded that the supervisors could match loans.

The supervisors recessed until 2 p.m. the same day to hear presentations by Jackson and Harrison Counties regarding CZM.

Attorney Boyce Holloman; Eddie Khayat, president of the Jackson County Board of Supervisors; and Leroy Urle, Harrison County supervisor appeared before Hancock Supervisors to discuss the coastal bill.

Supervisors James Travira and Oscar Peterson were not present because of other commitments.

Holloman and Khayat presented reasons why Hancock County should revise the interagency agreement of assent to CZM.

Webre stated, "We are concerned that we receive more fair and equitable treatment... there has been a question of Hancock County being looked over."

Khayat agreed with Webre but said that there wouldn't be any federal money if Hancock County should need some.

Dolph Kellar, Hancock County Board of Supervisors president then said, "We want to be damn sure we're included in this thing."

"We're thinking of 25 per cent of the Coastal Energy Impact Funds... why can't the allocation committee for these funds be from the three coastal counties, Kellar said.

Khayat agreed with Kellar and endorsed a percentage share plan for the tri-county area of 25-25-25 with 25 per cent discretionary funds suggested by Laird.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett, an allocations committee member, said, "I will get in touch with Travis Roberts (committee head) and ask for a special meeting to ask for a change in the allocation process."

WAVELAND WAVE POOL—A test-run of the Buccaneer State Park Wave Pool in Waveland in late October shows the ocean-like wave action which is generated in the pool. Public dedication ceremonies are scheduled for 2 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 18. Park Manager Greg Smith said bathers will be welcomed, weather permitting. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

Wave Pool dedication set

Dedication ceremonies for the new wave pool complex at Buccaneer State Park in Waveland, Mississippi, will be held Tuesday, December 18, at 2:00 p.m. The $1.7 million dollar facility is the first wave pool for Mississippi, and one of six in the southeastern United States. Governor Cliff Finch will be present for the dedication ceremony, which will conclude with a demonstration of the live water wave action swimming pool. According to Aubrey Rozzell, director of the Bureau of Recreation and Parks, the wave pool, which will not be open on a regular basis until May, is expected to attract a large number of visitors, and become one of the major revenue producing facilities in the state park system. Mississippi is the first state to have a wave pool in a state park.

The dedication ceremony will take place at the wave pool complex, near the front entrance to the park. Greg Smith, manager of Buccaneer State Park said, "If the weather should happen to be warm that day, visitors will be welcome to try out this new facility. However, just seeing the pool in operation is exciting." Park staff, Fred Wagner, AIA, the project architect, representatives from Wave Tek, the manufacturer of the pool, and Bureau of Recreation and Parks staff, will be available to give tours of the pool complex.

The wave making machinery and its electronic controls are housed in a sound proof room next to the deep end of the pool. Inside a series of 75 hp electric motors drive high speed fans, operating in sequenced order, which exert air pressure on the water contained in concrete chambers. The wave motion then enters the pool at the deep end, creating swells that break into three to four foot waves. The operating cycle is usually ten minutes of waves followed by 10 minutes of calm.

The wave pool is similar to the ocean. You can ride the crests on a raft, bob up and down in the rollers, body surf, frolic in the breaking whitecaps or just lay in the shallow end of the pool and let the last lap of waves roll over you.

Buccaneer State Park is located on the Gulf of Mexico, and is accessible from I-10 and Highway 90. The park also has facilities for developed camping, primitive camping, tennis, basketball, picnicking, hiking, and fishing.

Council shy on billing for private road work

By EDGAR PEREZ
The Bay St. Louis City Council Tuesday tabled a motion by Council President Pete Benvenuti to bill the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club for road work and a 700-foot gas line installed on club property by city crews and equipment.

Benvenuti questioned Mayor Larry

Bennett on use of city equipment on private property in connection with paving work underway at the yacht club.

Bennett said the city crews were sent to the club in response to a request for assistance from Hancock County District Three Supervisor Oscar Peterson.

"We cooperated as usual with a request for help from the supervisors," Bennett noted, adding when objections were raised last week the city workers and equipment were pulled off the job.

Peterson confirmed Wednesday he asked Bennett for assistance on the work at the yacht club.

"If I had had a piece of equipment in that end of the county I would have gone in there myself and scattered that gravel," Peterson admitted.

"There are a lot of people who belong to that club who have done a lot for this county and I will help them anytime whether I'm an elected official or not," Peterson added.

The supervisor emphasized he has supplied no materials to the yacht club.

Four charged in timber theft

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Four men were arrested singlehandedly 12:30 p.m. Wednesday by County Sheriff Sylvan Ladner and charged with theft of about $75 of firewood.

Ladner received a call from Landerdowner Charles Byrd who said there were some men cutting wood on his property just off Texas Flat Road close to the National Space Technology Laboratories' test site area.

Paul F. Collum, Lavell Collum, and Willie M. Mitchell all from Picayune, and Micheal W. Coleman of McNeill were arrested and charged with timber theft.

Ladner confiscated approximately one cord of firewood and three chainsaws used to cut the wood.

"Byrd had problems with people cutting wood on his property in the past and the man's property is fenced," Ladner said.

Affidavits were sworn out against the four men, bond was set at $1,000 each and a hearing is set for 7 p.m. Dec. 12.

Ladner added that the men had a permit to cut timber on International Paper Co. lands.

Hancock ok's $25 million in CZM funds for Coast

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors endorsed a request by Kellar to send a letter to Governor-Elect Winter requesting members of the allocation committee be selected from the three coastal Mississippi counties.

The board also endorsed a resolution requesting the CZM funds allocation committee distribute a 25 per cent share of funds to each county with 25 per cent discretionary funds.

The Hancock Port and Harbor Commissioners met and returned to jointly agree with county supervisors to amend the interagency agreement.

Khayat said, "I want to express my thanks for your generosity and recognize that we're working together for the Coast"

Bits 'n pieces

It amazes us now that for months after lunch the signal light on North Beach at Main Street is blinking.

We always thought it was supposed to be blinking late at night and not in the daytime when traffic is heavy.

We wonder if we are confused, or if the timer is confused and no one has thought about adjusting it properly.

With inflation coming at us from all angles today, many parents may be short on funds for the purchase of a special gift for their child.

A good present for any boy or girl could be a puppy. The Bay-Waveland Humane Society always seems to have puppies and even grown dogs up for adoption.

Now we do not recommend someone acquiring a pet for their children if they are not going to help them take good care of them and do not have a fenced yard and dog house for the animal to stay out of the cold to live in.

We realize it does cost money to own a pet, but we feel the many hours of happiness given to children by a pet cannot be surpassed in value.

If you think you can help your child give a dog a good home, why not give a call to the Humane Society at 467-9494.

There are many folks who do years of volunteer work and you never hear of them receiving much praise.

We have to extend a hand of sympathy to the family of J.E. Landrum who died on his way to a hospital Thursday morning.

Mr. Landrum, even though he was 71 years old, accompanied Bobby Boudin, Civil Defense director, on a search in the Pearl River for a Picayune man late in returning from a fishing trip Wednesday night.

We did not know Mr. Landrum personally, but he was a person who should receive praises for his help in aiding his fellowman, and his family should know how much his help was appreciated.

The reflectors on North Beach, which were placed by the oak tree which has caused many wrecks, are now gone.

We realize efforts were made to place these reflectors in order to save lives, but they now need to be re-installed since they are now down. Too many folks have cracked up along the area.

We hope drivers will try not to knock these down when they are replaced.

We have received word from the North Pole that Santa Claus will be giving the children of Hancock County a special visit Sunday.

We suggest that all boys and girls of the Community get their parents to bring them out to see Santa.

While talking about Santa, a special event will be going on Saturday night in the Jourdan River and at Diamondhead.

The annual parade of lights will form at the end of North Beach at the mouth of the Jourdan river at 5 p.m. and proceed up the river to Diamondhead's Yacht Club.

It is a beautiful scene seeing all the boats all decorated in so many lights.

The young can have fun too, by visiting with Santa at the Yacht Club after his ride up the river at about 6 p.m.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions
About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENNEY
Associate Professor of Journalism
University of Mississippi

I want to get into advertising, but I hear that there are no good openings in agencies. How can I break into the game? A College Student.

Dear ACS: First, it's not a game, but a serious business, combining art and science and requiring keenly honed instincts for a number of intangible considerations.

You need to study people, psychology, literature, marketing, writing and graphics. And then you may not break into the big time.

One of the best opportunities to break into the business is with a local newspaper.

There are a number of openings and most offer good pay, usually on an incentive plan.

By working with a myriad of retail advertisers you will learn the similarities and differences in business outlooks.

And you will learn how to successfully help them to accomplish the goals they have set for themselves and their businesses.

To be sure you will have to do a lot of things you may not care for, but this is true of all jobs, particularly at the beginner level.

After a few years on the newspaper ad staff you will be able to assess your particular job skills and, thus, know how to pursue a position with an agency.

For a beginner to go directly to an agency is risky for too many, due to inexperience and the lack of confidence that goes with it, bog down in a very undistinguished position or drop out completely.

Newspapers aren't the only training ground, but they seem to offer the broadest range of needed skills.

But this is not to belittle the newspaper ad department. I'm simply answering your question.

For newspaper ad managers, who really know their business, are well paid and highly regarded professionals in the newspaper and the general business community.

Many young aspirants to Madison Avenue, who begin their career on Main Street, don't stay. It has to do with frogs and ponds, and the relative sizes thereof.

Health Tip

Common Cold Defies Medical Researchers

This is the season of the year when the American Medical Association reminds once again that we still cannot cure a cold.

And if anyone tries to sell you on the latest version of a so-called "cold cure," you can laugh it off and save your money.

As the years go by more and more is being learned about colds and their causes. A number of viruses produced the symptoms that most of us call a cold, probably more than a hundred. The true cold is an infection with one or more viruses. Bacteria probably are purely secondary infections.

Current research indicates that colds are harder to spread than had been thought. Fresh colds appear to be more contagious than older ones. Children's colds probably are more contagious than those of adults. There still is much discussion among experts as to the relationship of chilling or exposure to dampness to "catching" a cold.

What can you do for a cold?

No specific treatment, so far available, is effective. Treatment is directed toward relief of the discomfort of runny nose, watering eyes, sore throat, fever and other symptoms of the cold. Penicillin does not stop the virus, but may be prescribed by your physician for secondary bacterial infections.

Your doctor will prescribe bed rest, or at least reduced physical activity. Medications to relieve headache and aching joints and to reduce fever can help. Antihistamines will curb runny nose. And after a couple of weeks, you'll be cured.

Cold vaccines have yet to be proved of much value. There is no evidence that any particular foods, special clothing or exposure to sunlight or fresh air will have any effect on colds. There has been some research which indicated that Vitamin C might help prevent or lessen colds, but the preponderance of research evidence is that this product is of doubtful value.

Washington report

PUT AMERICAN INGENUITY
TO WORK
By CONGRESSMAN
TRENT LOTT
5th District,
Mississippi

Americans are painfully aware of our dependence on foreign countries for an estimated 43 percent of our annual petroleum consumption. What would happen if the oil exporting countries imposed a total embargo, and that percentage dropped suddenly to zero?

The volatile situation in the Middle East's Persian Gulf states, for example, raises very real questions of our survival. While we have embarked on a systematic reduction of oil imports because of the crisis in Iran, we must continue to take a long-range look at our own future.

The plain truth is that, right now, America would not fare too well if a sustained, total embargo came into being. Even the U.S. military structure, upon which we depend for defense, still runs primarily on petroleum, and a total disruption of supply could stop our ships dead in the water.

SYNTHETIC FUELS

The question you might rightly ask is what is Congress doing about it? For one thing, attention finally has been focused on the production of synthetic fuels to replace conventional fuels.

A measure now in a House-Senate conference committee would encourage this conversion of any organic material into usable energy sources. It may include coal gasification, coal liquefaction, solid waste, heavy oils, shale, lignite, tar sand, gasohol and others.

I am excited about the potential of synthetic fuels, and pleased that we are putting old-fashioned American ingenuity back to work. Coupled with development of a solar energy bank, wind energy systems and other more diversified programs, I believe real progress will be made.

WIND ENERGY

It seems to be fashionable to deal with present problems by reaching out to the past. The wind energy systems proposal pending in the House is an example.

More than six million devices like windmills were built in the U.S. from the mid-1800s to the 1930s and used to pump water and generate electricity. The advent of rural electrification made most of them obsolete, but our energy problems today have resulted in a renewed interest.

Experts say that harnessing the energy of the winds could generate 1.7 Quads (quadrillion Btu's) per year by 2000. (The U.S. consumed approximately 18 Quads in 1978.)

There are some barriers to widespread production of wind generating systems, such as the high initial investment and relatively high cost per kilowatt hour.

But Congress may soon set up functional development programs to find out exactly what we can expect.

These are only a few of the items which could help, and I emphasize the word "help," put our country on the right track toward energy independence.

Senator Thad Cochran

SPECIAL REPORT:

Farm to Market Link

No sector of our economy, in Mississippi and elsewhere in America, is more dependent on transportation than agriculture.

The effective and efficient movement of agricultural products is of paramount importance, not only to the agricultural sector, but to the overall economy of our nation.

Historically, the availability of transportation has been tight during peak harvest seasons. However, the temporary shortages of the 1960s have turned into critical shortages in the 1970s. The capacity of our transportation system has been stretched thin by the need to move a growing volume of agricultural production, to meet the demands of both our domestic and foreign markets.

For example, the dramatic upsurge in the production levels of our major crops the past ten years underscores the added burden on our rail, water, truck and air transportation systems. During the past decade cotton production has increased by 43 percent, soybeans, 90 percent, rice, 86 percent, feed grains, 58 percent, and wheat, 56 percent, for a total of 137 million metric tons more in production which must be moved to market than was the case just ten years ago.

Much of this increase has been in response to the rapid growth in foreign demand. U.S. agricultural exports have grown at an annual rate of nearly 10 percent the past decade, about double the rate of our domestic consumption. As a result we now export farm production from about 100 million acres, or one in every three harvested, for a value this year of over $32 billion. We have become a nation of agricultural exporters, as the dollar figure just mentioned clearly indicates, but we must import about $50 billion in foreign oil to meet our nation's needs.

Although our nation's transportation system thus far has managed to cope with this tremendous volume of farm production, the rising export shipments have placed a substantial strain on the movement of agricultural products and related goods and services within our internal, or domestic, markets.

Some segments of our agricultural economy have been burdened with surcharges on shipments of such things as poultry feed. This is a classic example of how efforts to compensate for seasonal demands for transportation in one sector of our agricultural economy result in excessive burdens in other areas.

If we look beyond 1980, the complications are further compounded. If the projections by experts are correct, and I hope they are, the demand for American agricultural production will double or perhaps even triple during the next decade.

I am concerned that our ability to transport this tremendous increase in farm production may be a limiting factor in sustaining this growth and demand. It does our farmers little good to produce abundant crops if these commodities remain bottlenecked in our transportation system.

The solutions will not be easy, and we should not concentrate on just one mode of our overall transportation system. There are many problems which must be addressed in the process. These include delays in improvements on key waterway facilities such as Locks and Dam 26 on the Mississippi River, completion of the Tennessee Tombigbee Waterway, improvements of deteriorated railroad beds, highway bridges and roadways and many rail line abandonments.

Concerns have been voiced about the direct impact such rail abandonments have on rural shippers in states such as Mississippi, where alternate transportation options are not readily available. These abandonments, coupled with the prospect of total deregulation of trucks or motor carriers, could mean higher costs for rural and agricultural shippers, yet leave them with less dependable transportation service.

To examine all these problems and concerns, the Senate Agriculture Committee, at my request, has been holding hearings to help insure that the needs of agricultural transportation are fully considered and met by those responsible, in both the private sector and in government.

In Mississippi we do not need to be reminded how crucial farming and related agricultural business and industry are to our state's economy. But it is worth noting that agriculture and related industry account for over $4 billion annually, or at least one-third of our gross state product each year. We can easily see how a serious transportation snarl, if unresolved, would cripple our economy and cause severe economic and employment problems in many areas of Mississippi.

As your United States Senator, I am committed to work to see that the needs of agriculture and rural America are heard in our nation's councils, and more importantly, that these needs are met so that our state and nation can continue to grow and prosper economically.

Road Work.....

"I had nothing to do with the gravel," Peterson stated.

Councilman Fred Wagner, a yacht club member, took the same approach in defending Bennett's actions in using public manpower and equipment on a private project.

Wagner described the yacht club as a "quasi-public organization...which brings credit to our community."

"We should look at this thing more closely before sending them a bill thereby implying some gross wrongdoing on their part," Wagner added.

"I think it's wrong to charge them for the gas line...and I'm not in favor of sending a bill (on road work) until the council is apprised of the charges and the extent of the manpower and equipment which was used," Wagner continued.

Wagner noted the city's gas meter sits back off the property line some 700 feet.

"There is no way that this is right," countered Councilman James Thriffley.

"This is private property and it is absurd that we should spend one cent of city money or give away one inch of gas line," Thriffley exhorted, noting the city has been hard pressed to resurface streets which have been torn up in the 1978 Small Cities sewerage and water project.

"Many people in this community have gotten 'freebies' from the city and agreed to pay for them, but they have never gotten billed," Thriffley continued.

"We need a policy or an ordinance on the giving away of 700 feet of gas line or 1,800 feet of water line," Thriffley continued as he turned to City Attorney Joseph Gex for advice on the matter.

"The law is you don't use public funds on private property," the attorney assured the councilman.

Councilman Harry Farve said he felt the council would be unable to resolve the issue Tuesday night and asked the matter be tabled. He was supported in the move by Wagner and Councilman Wilmer Seymour.

Wagner later requested payment be withheld on a docket item for 17 tons of asphalt. "Where did it go," the councilman questioned.

Haskins.....

candidate in the November general election, but also lost to Sills.

Board President Woodrow Ladner called the resignation "a very noble gesture," adding that the superintendent and principal must have a good working relationship.

"I hope these two men can get together and find a good working relationship. Mr. Haskins is the finest principal we have had at the school since it was built," Ladner said.

Board Member Louie Ladner made a motion to take the issue under advisement, which was seconded by Oris Ladner and approved unanimously.

Board Members Johnny Banks and Monvel Cuevas were not present at Monday's meeting.

Also at the meeting the board adopted a resolution asking the Picayune Municipal Separate School District to return some 60 acres of land in Hancock County's National Space Technology Laboratories buffer zone which the board 'loaned' to the Picayune district in 1957.

Randolph said the land was annexed to the Picayune schools because students on that land were closer to that city and the Hancock County School Board then deemed the annexation "in the best interest of education."

Since 1957 NSTL has established the 60 acres as being in the restrictive easement area (buffer zone), and no students reside on that land, according to the superintendent.

Randolph said Monday the Picayune School District is receiving all tax money from that land and said he wants the land back.

Woodrow Ladner asked if an act of state legislature had been necessary to turn the land over to the Picayune district.

"No, this was an agreement between the two school boards," Randolph replied.

"The ownership belongs to Hancock County, but the Picayune district is receiving all the use and benefits of the land," he added.

Oris Ladner insisted the board just "take the land back," adding "it is our land and we don't have to ask anybody."

Woodrow Ladner then suggested the board go on record and ask the Picayune district if the Hancock district may reclaim the land.

Board Attorney Joseph Gex said the board does not have to reclaim the land, just make an agreement with the Picayune board to have the land returned.

Louie Ladner made the motion, which was seconded by Oris Lander and approved by the board.

The board recessed until Saturday, Dec. 15 at 9 a.m. when it will meet with Representative J.P. Compretta to discuss redistricting the school district.

MISSISSIPPI WEEKLY WEATHER & CROP REPORT

Mississippi's agricultural weather outlook calls for another wetter than usual December, according to the National Weather Service Outlook distributed by the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Temperatures will average near normal in the north half of the state, but below normal in the south, say agrometeorologists at the Environmental Studies Service Center in Stoneville who prepare the report.

Farmers should take advantage of the dry spell at the beginning of the month to complete stalk cutting and land preparation.

On the average, only about a week of work days are available on sandy soils and less than seven days on heavy clays.

Rainfall amounts will range from more than five inches in the north to more than six in the south. More frequent rainy periods may make it even more difficult to do tillage work.

Greater frequency of precipitation will force north Mississippi poultrymen to burn more fuel than normal for December.

South Mississippi poultrymen also may use more fuel because of the combination of lower than normal temperatures and higher than median precipitation.

The winter season outlook calls for a 65 percent chance that December through February temperatures will average below normal.

Cattlemen will have a few periods when calves will need extra protection from cold, windy weather.

Most winter pastures had a good start, but some hay and other supplements may be needed preceding one or two particularly cold periods.

REALTOR

SELL HOME YOURSELF?

I'm sure you've heard it said: "Why should I sell my home through a REALTOR? I can sell it myself and save a lot of money." Right? ... Wrong!

This kind of thinking usually turns out to be financially unwise. The prospects will usually start by mentally deducting the commission and then start negotiating from there. On the average, a homeowner saves NO money when he sells his own home. In fact, the opposite is true. Studies over a ten year period show that the net proceeds from owner-sold property are LESS than the REALTOR-sold piece of real estate, even after the payment of commission. As a private seller you're at a great disadvantage in the intricate areas of financing, negotiating and protecting yourself from all sorts of do-it-yourself pitfalls. You've got a lot invested in your home. It makes sense to list it with a REALTOR. He'll sell it for you without hitches for the best price and in the shortest amount of time.

County schools seek severance tax return

By RICH ADAMS

The Hancock County School Board this week called for state legislators to submit a bill which would provide that no funds from severance taxes may be chargeable to the school district's minimum education program.

Superintendent Terry Randolph told the board Monday the current method of charging severance taxes, derived from oil and timber companies, is discriminatory to the school systems in the taxed county.

Severance taxes are paid by the oil and timber companies to the state, and one-third of that money is returned to the county in which the drilling or lumbering occurred.

The school district in that county then receives 50 percent of the one-third returned to the state.

Randolph said after the meeting the tax monies are then deducted from the system's minimum education program funds by the State Department of Education in Jackson, and the leftover money at the end of the year is being distributed among the other school districts in the state.

"Say the minimum education program for the year were $1 million," said the superintendent.

"This would be for teacher salaries, support services, and other programs. If we then received $100,000 in severance taxes, that money would be deducted from our minimum education program by the State Department of Education," he continued.

"I feel we are being discriminated against for having timber and mineral deposits in our county," Randolph added.

The superintendent said a bill requesting the severance tax not be chargeable to the education program was introduced into the state legislature last year, but did not go any farther than the committee assigned to discuss the matter.

"This year we are asking State Representative J.P. Compretta and State Senator Martin T. Smith to reintroduce the bill in the 1980 session," Randolph said.

On a motion by Board Member Louie Ladner, seconded by Oris Ladner, the resolution was adopted.

In other business Monday the board opened bids for salvaged school buses. Five buses had been determined to be salvage and the board sold the vehicles to the highest bidders.

Bus No. 26 went to Harlan Dean for $176; Bus No. 29 also went to Dean for $261; Bus No. 30 was sold to Richard Garcia for $76; Bus No. 35 or 36 was bought by Lester Hover for $85; and Bus No. 39 went to Garcia for $105.

What is your skin type? Dry, normal, oily or combination? Even if you think you know yours, it's a good idea to check periodically. Skin types change from year to year, even season to season. And using the correct skin-care products is essential to having beautiful, healthy-looking skin.

Here is a simple test to determine your skin type: Before washing your face in the morning, tear a brown paper bag into small pieces.

Rub cheeks, nose, chin and forehead with a separate piece for each area.

If skin is normal, there will be a slight oily residue on the paper. If the paper becomes almost translucent, that area is too oily. If there is nothing at all on the paper, that area is too dry.

If the test shows that your skin is the same all over, you can follow a specific skin-care regimen.

If the test indicates a combination complexion, you must practice combination care. Select a soap that is closest to your overall skin type, then use a combination of other products.

Once you determine your type of skin, you should use a facial soap formulated especially for you. One of the best you can use is Neutrogena, because they make a specific soap for each skin-type—whether it's normal, dry, oily, or perfume-sensitive.

Prayer service set for hostages today

An interdenominational prayer service for 50 Americans being held hostage by Iranian students in Tehran will be conducted today at 4 p.m. in St. Clare's Catholic Church in Waveland.

The meeting is sponsored by teenagers from Pearllington, Bay St. Louis, and Waveland, who call themselves the Hancock County Teenagers.

Several clergymen and public officials are slated to speak at the service, according to Vickie Young of Pearllington, spokeswoman for the group.

Ms. Young said Tuesday Rev. John Scanlon of St. Clare's and Rev. Charles Clark of the First Assembly of God in Waveland have agreed to speak at the services.

She added she has contacted Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett and Waveland Mayor Johnny Longo in attempts to have them speak at the event.

"We are doing this in response to President (Jimmy) Carter's call for clergymen to ring church bells at noon. We are trying to do more than ring bells because prayer will bring results," Ms. Young said Tuesday.

In November President Carter asked that church bells be rung by the nation's clergy daily at noon until the hostages are released by the Iranian government.

The prayer service will be the third assembly in Hancock County in support of the hostages since the American Embassy in Tehran was stormed by angry Iranian students in November.

The first assembly, at which students planned to burn an Iranian flag on Beach Boulevard, was cancelled after Bay Police Chief Douglas Williams said the event could not take place.

About 200 citizens attended the second assembly, which was staged last week in front of Bay St. Louis City Hall.

The demonstration was sponsored by local students and was a patriotic gesture in support of the hostages.

Young said she attempted to contact churches in the county outside the city limits of Bay St. Louis and Waveland to arrange other speakers, but was unsuccessful.

"I urge anyone concerned about the hostage situation to come to the service. Prayer will get results," Young said Tuesday.

Agriculture Today

by Ed Curran

U.S. Department of Agriculture

With another short Soviet grain crop almost a certainty this year, prospects look good for increased U.S. wheat exports to Russia in the months to come. Which means that American farmers will soon be hearing that old saw about bread prices going to $1 a loaf—all because of increased wheat prices to farmers.

Now, make no mistake about it, bread just might go to $1 a loaf. But, the argument that it will be because of higher wheat prices to farmers just doesn't hold water. Mainly, because there is very little connection between the price farmers get for their wheat and the price consumers pay for bread.

Let's look at the facts. First, keep in mind that a bushel of wheat provides flour for about 69 one-pound loaves of white bread. And, that a change of $1 per bushel in the price of wheat affects the net farm value of wheat ingredients in a one-pound loaf of bread about 1.2 cents a loaf.

That means if the farm price of wheat increases $1 per bushel, the net cost of the wheat ingredients in a one-pound loaf of bread increases about 1.2 cents.

Now, let's look back a few years. In June 1972, just one month before the famous sale of wheat to the Soviet Union, bread prices in the U.S. averaged just 24.7 cents for the one-pound loaf, and the net farm value of the wheat ingredients in the loaf was 2.6 cents. This was based on the average price of $1.33 per bushel received by U.S. farmers.

Just this past June, bread prices averaged 41.2 cents a pound (while farmers were getting an average of $3.72 per bushel for wheat) and the net farm value of the wheat ingredients in the bread was 4.5 cents.

In other words, while the price of bread increased 16.5 cents a loaf during the period, the farm price of the wheat in the bread went up only 1.9 cents. Looking at it another way, if you took the wheat out of the bread, you'd still pay 36.7 cents for the empty bag!

If wheat isn't the culprit, what is? A 1977 study—back when the fabled one-pound loaf of bread cost consumers 35.5 cents—showed that wheat represented about 2.7 cents (or about 7 1/2 percent) of the total cost. The net farm value of other food ingredients in the bread was 1.8 cents—or 5 percent of the total. Retailing costs accounted for 3.1 cents—or nearly 9 percent of the total. Baking and costs of distributing the bread to the stores accounted for 26 cents—73 percent of the total.

A breakdown of those baking and distribution costs shows labor took 12.7 cents—nearly 36 percent of the over-all total; packaging 2.5 cents—7 percent of the total. Depreciation, business taxes, rent, energy, interest and repairs combined took only 1.9 cents—another 5.4 percent. Miscellaneous costs accounted for 6.4 cents—18 percent of the total.

Putting it another way, labor costs accounted for nearly 5 times as much as the farmer received for the wheat; packaging, alone, nearly as much as the farmer received. And, so-called miscellaneous or "other" costs—items too small to categorize—took nearly 2 1/2 times as much as the farmer received for the wheat in the bread.

Summing it all up, a 25 percent increase in the prices farmers receive for wheat would add less to the cost of a loaf of bread than would a 4 percent increase in the processing and distribution costs in a loaf of bread.

THE ECONOMICS OF LESS

Like it or not, it appears that at least two decades before the advent of the 21st century, most Americans are going to have to switch their lifestyles from a dependency on quantity to one of quality.

And according to a leading American economist, Carter Henderson, getting off the consumption treadmill could be the best thing that ever happened to our economy, our life styles, and our inner selves.

Writing in the current issue of BEST OF BUSINESS magazine, Henderson points out that the American culture has developed with the philosophy that most problems can be solved by the generous application of "more of whatever. As examples—traffic congestion can be relieved by building more highways. Cancer can be abolished by awarding more medical research grants. Or peace can be achieved through more advanced weaponry.

It has taken the crunch of the energy shortage plus looming scarcities of most of our natural resources to realize that the traditional American abundance of things is not only exhaustible in the distant future, but its currently escalating scarcity in the face of the requirements of a growing population poses an imminent threat to many economic practices of the past.

Another philosophical warning is sounded by yet another late economist, E.F. Schumacher, author of "Small Is Beautiful." He puts it—"What is quite clear is that a way of life which bases itself on materialism that is on permanent limitless expansion, in a finite environment, cannot last long, and that its life expectation is the shorter the more successfully it pursues its expansive objectives." In short, we are running out of things.

A similar warning was proclaimed on educational TV only last week as another economist pointed out two examples of American over-indulgence in the production and promotion of such products as electrical pencil sharpeners and electric knives. The question, of course, is, "does society really benefit at large from electrification of pencil sharpeners or carving knives?"

Another example of a product of over-indulgence might be that of riding lawn mowers for the robust man of the house and small yard who might benefit more from the exercise of pushing a light-weight mower around the lawn than being a passenger.

The energy shortage has forced many Americans to amend their own life style concepts already in regard to transportation. The looming national water scarcity in the face of population growth soon will hit with decision-making consequences. A multitude of other diminishing resources will bring about forced changes in attitude toward utilization of remaining resources.

This is no more a problem for consumers than it is for farmers, or laborers, or educators or anybody else.

But it will present the most difficult adjustments for those close their eyes to coming scarcities and fail to recognize the appropriateness of quality rather than quantity as these options come to bear on their life styles.

Already agriculture is beset with shortages of fuel, transportation carriers, water in certain regions, and this list is certain to grow much faster than we can adjust under the best circumstances.

Now is already a bit late to start planning for the future needs of the American food supply system. And while Americans have a history of plentiful food supplies, it might be well to note from the current situation in Cambodia or other dependent nations what can happen in a hurry when a nation cannot feed itself.

The economics of less is not popular—but highly important!

SENIOR CITIZEN EVENTS

by Ms. Pete Carr

Thanksgiving is over and we hope everyone engaged to the fullest their family and-or friends.

The excitement and anticipation of Christmas is now whirling in the air and sooner or later we are all caught up in it.

This is the month to become very conscientious in the selection of TV programs; to pick out the programs which enhance the true meaning of Christmas.

Two Senior Citizens are up for special mention this week: Esther Scalafani Oshmann is known in the community for her many activities.

She is a volunteer in the Senior Citizens program; very active in the activities of Our Lady of the Gulf Church, Vice president of the Silver Creek School for Exceptional Children, and secretary of the Senior Citizens Nutrition Board.

It is impossible for us to list all her activities in the Community in this column but we would like to mention that she received in 1978 the Community Service Award for Civic Affairs.

Ms. Oshman has just received another award of which she is justly proud: "Fifty years has elapsed since Loyola University conferred its approval upon the academic achievements of Esther Scalafani Oshmann. Loyola University and Loyola University's Alumni Association hereby commemorate the occasion of this memorable event with this citation of honor, esteem and congratulations while praying God's choicest blessings on her as a Golden Jubilee Alumnus."

This Citation was presented by the president of Loyola University's Father James C. Carter at ceremonies at L'Pavillion Hotel in New Orleans, Nov. 29.

I also spent the morning with Mrs. Mary R. Schilling, 92 years young.

Mrs. Schilling is in the Day Care Center and can't wait for the bus to pick her up each morning. The bus never has to wait for her and she is all dressed and ready.

As a matter of fact I was told that she is disappointed when Saturday and Sunday come and she has to stay home. She makes her own bed each morning.

Her vocation in life was teaching which she enjoyed. She has taught all over the world as her husband was in the service, which at times placed them in danger.

Mrs. Schilling's face lights up with the memories the two of them had in the many blissful years of their marriage.

I asked her what she thought of the Center and she said she has made many friends and she enjoys coming.

She spoke of Theresa James, RSVP director as having been of great assistance to her and that they were good friends.

Mrs. Schilling is a walking history book and I wish I had known her a few years back to spend the time and listen to her relate stories of interest of an era she had lived through.

Her whole face lights up when she smiles and her eyes twinkle when she speaks of her husband and the happy years they had together.

Should I reach the age of 92, I hope that the good Lord will bestow upon me the charm, dignity and grace which Mary R. Schilling carries today.

Some call it by the French names, "daube" or "boeuf a la mode" - others just call it "pot roast" - but whatever you choose to call it, this church or round roast, slowly simmered in a heavy iron pot, redolent with seasonings and generous splashes of red wine, is much more a true gourmet dish than many a more elaborate concoction, and rightly so.

mine quite as tasty as her's, even though through the years I've watched and watched - and tasted and tasted - as she cooked it and my family even prefers Delores' pot roast to mine.

POT ROAST, NEW ORLEANS
4 to 5 lb. chuck roast
2 or 3 cloves garlic, slivered
4 tbsps. Olive oil
2 onions, chopped
Bay leaf
Dashes of basil, cayenne pepper, black pepper, salt to your taste
2 cups of more of burgundy wine.

Water as needed
Make slits in the chuck and poke garlic slivers in. Barely cover the bottom of a large Dutch oven or other heavy pot with olive oil and sear the roast on all sides, almost burning it over a high fire (that's part of the secret of the lush dark sauce or gravy).

Reduce the fire and add the onions, along with the other seasonings, and keep watching to be sure that the meat doesn't stick to the bottom of the pot.

Cut the flame down just to just-simmering temperature, cover the pot and simmer the roast for two hours or so, till fork-tender, adding wine or water as needed, turning the meat if needed to ensure that good brown coat all over. Serve with rice.

Sometimes Delores adds carrots and halved Irish potatoes about 45 minutes before the roast is done. The secret of this daube or pot roast, as in many other Southern-Creole-Cajun dishes of this sort, is, as Delores told me years ago, to "season high and keep the flame low."

Delores often adds a cup of red peppers or generous splashes of red pepper sauce for an extra taste treat.

LANDOWNERS

Do you need more income from your timberland? Hercules Incorporated has developed a process for converting the stump of a living pine tree into lightwood. With this new process, Hercules pays landowners for the right to treat the stumps of their pine timber while the trees are still growing and remove the stumps after the trees are harvested. With the stumps removed, the land is left in excellent condition for reforestation or conversion into other uses, such as pasture or row cropping.

To participate in the program, landowners need only to have merchantable pine timber which they plan to harvest within the next few years. To learn more about the program, call Mike Petter, 601-896-9472, Gulfport, Mississippi, or write or call Hercules Incorporated, Hattiesburg, Mississippi, 39401, phone number 601-545-3450.

Survey shows:

Viet veterans were suckers

Although only one in five Americans still supports America's involvement in the Vietnam war, a great majority of the public has a high regard for the veterans who fought that war.

This is a major finding in a preliminary survey ordered by President Carter and conducted for the Veterans Administration by Louis Harris and Associates which has been released by Max Cleland, administrator of veterans affairs.

"The fact the public now makes a clear distinction between the warriors who fought and unpopular war and the war itself is a great tribute to all our Vietnam veterans," Cleland said.

"The findings clearly indicate there is 'fertile soil' for further efforts to dispel any lingering negative stereotyping of Vietnam veterans in association with the war," he added.

"I am enormously pleased the survey shows a very high regard for and great sympathy toward Vietnam era veterans," Cleland added.

"To me, the survey is a strong mandate for VA to push even harder in carrying out its many programs to assist our veterans," he continued.

"It also demonstrates to me that the new readjustment counseling program recently passed by Congress and approved by President Carter-a program we have long sought-is right on target in helping those veterans who most need help with readjustment problems."

A survey to determine the public's last year by President Carter to assist VA in carrying out its programs.

The survey request was revealed in a comprehensive message sent to Congress October 10, 1978, by the President in seeking increased assistance for Vietnam era veterans.

The advance survey was conducted among a nationwide cross section of 1,200 persons.

Additional Harris studies of the general public, Vietnam era veterans, educators and employers are being conducted and the results are expected early next year, Cleland said.

A somewhat similar survey was conducted for VA by the Harris firm in 1971.

The most recent survey found that "by a margin of 62-32 percent, the public agrees that 'veterans of the Vietnam war were made suckers, having to risk their lives in the wrong war in the wrong place at the wrong time' (a proportion which has increased significantly from the 49 percent who held this view in 1971).

Public sympathy for the "plight" of Vietnam era veterans seems to have increased since 1971. In that year, only 48 percent felt returning veterans were being treated worse than veterans of earlier wars; today 64 percent hold that view.

The public seems emotional or mental problems, problems in finding work, discrimination because of military service, problems with alcohol and drugs, and alienation and lack of purpose as serious concerns for Vietnam era veterans, but it sees only the emotional problems and substance abuse as being more pronounced because of combat experience.

The public is generally aware of the major benefit programs operated by VA and regards them either as absolutely essential or quite valuable.

One in three of those interviewed blames distrust of government and public institutions on the war.

Only 30 percent of the public gives the federal government as a whole marks and, among households containing at least one veteran, VA performances was rated even higher.

NSTL buffer zone privately owned

A NASA spokesman at the National Space Technology Laboratories (NSTL) in Hancock County has issued a reminder that the land in NSTL's acoustic easement area, or buffer zone, is privately owned, not owned by the federal government.

Therefore, anyone who enters those private lands to take firewood, hunt, camp or fish without permission of the landowners is in violation of the law and subject to prosecution for trespassing, the spokesman explained.

The 125,328 acres in the NSTL buffer zone belong, for the most part, to the original landowners, who retain all rights to their lands except for the construction of dwellings or similar structures.

The government owns the 13,480 acres where the NSTL facilities are located in Hancock County. This property is clearly marked and is fenced.

However, the government does own a few scattered parcels of land in the buffer zone and anyone who enters those areas without permission is also in violation of the law.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, as NASA's Agent, is responsible for assuring that buffer zone regulations are met. In addition, the NSTL security force makes periodic inspections of lands in the buffer zone.

Over the years, NASA has cooperated with landowners and law enforcement agencies in Hancock County to protect the privately owned lands in the buffer zone.

Lawyers Sharpen Skills With Continuing Legal Education Programs

By Theodore I. Koskoff, President
Association of Trial Lawyers of America
Warren E. Burger, Chief Justice of the United States, has continually stated that "there is a poor quality performance by a substantial number of lawyers who come into our courts."

He recommends improving the accreditation process, fixing higher standards of professional excellence, and establishing programs for the training of trial advocates to remedy this situation.

More than 33 years ago, the Association of Trial Lawyers of America (ATLA) recognized the need for continuing legal education and devoted itself to honing the skills of courtroom advocates.

Each year ATLA's continuing legal education seminars, held in every Judicial Circuit in the United States, provide trial lawyers with a forum for new legal concepts and decisions. ATLA's basic Trial Advocacy Seminars teach courtroom strategy and effective presentation.

The National College of Advocacy and Advanced College lead trial advocates through all phases of civil and criminal litigation in seven-day seminars held annually. Conventions and special seminars in major cities across the nation also keep trial lawyers abreast of critical issues and new developments in the legal profession.

The National Board of Trial Advocacy (NBTA) was founded by ATLA in 1977 to improve trial advocacy by certifying lawyers of proven competence throughout the United States. NBTA, now sponsored by the American Board of Trial Advocates, the International Society of Barristers, the National Association of Criminal Defense Lawyers, and the National District Attorneys Association, will hold its first certification exams in June, 1980. The American public will then be able to identify, for the first time, the trial lawyers who meet high national standards for civil and criminal trial advocacy.

Many lawyers take advantage of home study through educational counseling aids developed by ATLA, including videotapes, audio cassettes, and legal texts on all phases of trial advocacy.

The benefits of these continuing legal education programs are readily recognized by the consumer. These programs will make it possible for the legal profession to forge into the 80's with the excellent courtroom skills and outstanding knowledge of current legal topics that consumers rightfully demand.

Pineville Presbyterian bell tolls out hope for hostages

BY JOE PILET
At noon on Sunday, December 2, the congregation that had gathered to worship at the historic old Pineville Presbyterian Church stood with bowed heads and heard the tolling of the great bell as it rang from the belfry. They listened with their hearts as the Reverend George Kirker prayed for the safe release of American hostages held by Iranian students in Tehran.

Elder W.V. Lacy of Long

Beach set the bell in motion and continued its celebration for several minutes. The tolling of the bell was in response to President Carter's earlier request.

During the church service as an opening hymn the congregation stood and sang Longfellow's immortal hymn, "I Heard the Bells."

It seemed fitting and proper that Longfellow, America's most popular poet of the 1800's should be selected to give the message: "God is not dead, nor doth He sleep; The wrong shall fail, the right prevail, with Peace on earth, good will to men."

The quaint and picturesque Pineville Presbyterian Church, a white frame building along Gothic lines, was completed in 1878. However, the church is much older.

Before the church was housed in the building, worshippers held meetings on the grounds beneath grand old live oak trees that still stand as sentinels both in the church yard and throughout that verdant community.

The original building, said to have been about 40 feet by 20 feet was destroyed by fire in 1917, and immediately rebuilt.

Two years earlier, the great hurricane of 1915 destroyed a sister church—the Pass Christian Presbyterian Church—which was never rebuilt.

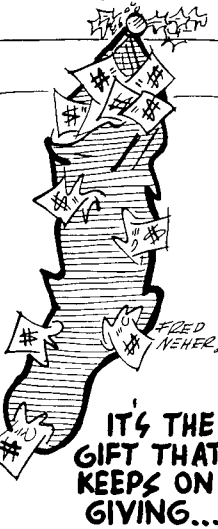

Salvaged articles from the hurricane destroyed church were given to the rebuilt Pineville church and include the great bell which tolled on Sunday.

A pulpit bible from the Pass Christian church is also among the most cherished relics.

To be seen in sanctuary is a pew from the original Pineville church. It was built by Wiley and M.M. Lawrence, pioneers of the church during the time the Reverend W.C. Clark served as minister for the thirty-four enrolled members.

Education confab begins today

The Higher Education Conference scheduled for today and Friday at the Downtown Holiday Inn in Jackson has been hailed by Bobby Chain of Hattiesburg as "probably the most important meeting of its type ever held in Mississippi and should have a dynamic effect on the future of higher education."

The College Board is hosting the two day meeting for state legislators and elected officials in order to better acquaint them with state supported higher education in Mississippi and the role it can play in the state's development in the '80s.

"This conference will have several elements very critical to higher education at this time. We will be reviewing, exploring, assessing needs, setting a stage for additional planning and goal setting in addition to a highly effective exchange of ideas between the participants," Chain said.

The meeting will get underway at 1 p.m. on December 4 and conclude with an address by Governor-elect William Winter at noon on the 7th.

Keesler presents 'Messiah' Friday

The 26th annual production of George Frederick Handel's "The Messiah" will be presented at Chapel Two on Keesler AFB in Biloxi Dec. 7 at 7:30 p.m. and Dec. 9 at 2:30 p.m.

Rehearsals for "The Messiah" began Sept. 24, with more than 100 volunteers in attendance. Most of the participants are from local parishes on the Gulf Coast along with members of the Keesler chapels.

Adam Ortis, chairperson of the Music Department at Jefferson Davis Junior College will be the conductor for the production, which he has conducted for many years.

Ortis holds a Bachelor of Music Education and Master of Music degree from the University of Southern Mississippi, and has conducted choirs throughout the U.S.

He served in the U.S. Air Force from 1955 to 1958 and was director of the Keesler Male Chorus. He also organized the first Keesler Community Chorus.

SBA disaster loan deadline nears

As December 13th, the deadline for filing SBA disaster loan applications approaches, SBA Disaster Branch Manager Fred Stone states that only 30 percent of the applications given out by SBA during the wake of Hurricane Frederic have been returned.

"We are concerned that all renters, homeowners and business owners who suffered personal or real property damage that was not covered by insurance realize that they may be eligible for disaster loan assistance and make application," said Stone. "SBA disaster loans are not just for businesses; we cover homes, personal property and also the purchase of HUD mobile homes. Even people with insurance can apply to SBA, and can and should apply immediately, before the deadline. We can make a loan for the eligible amount of loss with an assignment of insurance or other compensation when received," stated Stone.

Residents of the 16 declared and 8 adjacent Mississippi counties have until December 13, 1979 to pick up and return their disaster loan applications. To date, SBA has interviewed over 14,000 disaster victims and distributed 8000 applications. Of the 2576 applications that have been returned to SBA for processing, SBA has already approved 1183 for a dollar amount of $9,286,000 and disbursed over $2,000,000.

For the convenience of those persons living in outlying areas who still need assistance completing loan applications, SBA personnel will be in the following locations on Friday, December 7th:

Hattiesburg-County Welfare Office from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.
Lucedale-County Court House from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.
Waynesboro-Welfare Department Office from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

SBA personnel are also located in the Moss Point-Pascagoula area at the Chamber of Commerce, Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and will be there daily until December 13th.

The SBA Disaster Office in Biloxi is located at 132 East Washington Street. Office hours are Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Persons who need help completing or wish to return their disaster loan applications may do so at any of the above locations. For further information contact the SBA disaster in Biloxi at 374-5520.

Consumer specialist reports hazards of wood burning heaters

"MONEY TALKS"

By NORENE BARNES
Many homeowners have installed or are considering installing wood burning stoves to provide heat and reduce fuel costs. The Insurance Information Institute reports that these stoves can be responsible for destructive fires.

The Institute cites typical examples:
- In Oregon, nearly 1,300 home fires during 1978 involved wood heating units making this the third most frequent cause of fires during the year.

Montana's fire marshal reports that 20 percent of all fires in family dwelling units during 1978 were found to have been related to the use of wood stoves.

The problem of fires resulting from the improper installation or maintenance of wood burning stoves is not confined to the Pacific Northwest. It's nationwide in scope.

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission reports that improper installation and misuse of wood burning stoves is contributing to a growing number of home fires, injuries and deaths.

Fire prevention officials, stove manufacturers, the Consumer Product Safety Commission, and the insurance industry agree that improperly installed and maintained wood burning stoves are an increasingly serious hazard to life and property.

They also agree that the overwhelming number of fires that are occurring could be prevented if just a few simple rules were followed.

The Institute suggests a number of do's and don'ts:
- Do make sure there is the proper clearance between the stove and any combustible material (wall, ceiling, furniture, newspapers, or other inflammable object);
- Do place the stove on a fireproof base;

- Do consult a detailed safety manual to be sure the stove pipe and flue meet safety requirements;
- Do make sure your stove is made of sturdy, suitable material, such as cast iron or steel. Look for stoves bearing the Underwriters Laboratories (UL) label or other evidence of testing by recognized laboratories;

- Do remember, if you purchase a used stove, to check it carefully for cracks or other defects. The legs, hinges, grates, and draft louvers also should be checked carefully;

- Don't ever burn anything but seasoned, dry hardwood in the stove;

- Don't ever use gasoline, kerosene or any inflammable liquid (including lighter fluid) to start a fire. Start a fire by using small strips of paper and twigs.

- Don't treat the stove as a garbage unit;

- Don't let a wood fire burn unattended or overnight; and
- Don't light this year's first fire without first cleaning smokepipe elbows, joints and flues, as well as the chimney.

Salt dome waste analyzed

by recent NORDA development

A unique ocean measurement system that can measure and analyze the highly saline brine pumped out from a salt dome which will be used for oil storage has been developed and installed by the Naval Ocean Research and Development Activity (NORDA) in Hancock County under Department of Energy sponsorship.

Called the Brine Measurement System or BRIMS, the system will monitor the dispersion of the brine in the sea as it is evacuated from the Bryan Mound salt dome near Freeport, Texas, through a three-foot diameter pipeline extending 12.5 miles offshore.

Salt domes located in Texas and Louisiana have been designated to be used for the Strategic Petroleum Reserve to be available in the event of a future halt of foreign oil imports.

There is a limited amount of storage space in some of the domes that were previously used to store hydrocarbon products which have been removed. About 91 million barrels of crude oil has been stored in the available space, but this is only a small portion of what is needed to meet this country's requirements.

Additional space is to be developed by leaching new caverns, which involves pumping in water to mix with the salt to produce a brine solution that is then pumped out to sea.

A primary concern is to determine whether the discharge of the highly saline brine might have an adverse effect on the local marine environment. Theoretical studies already conducted indicate that the brine will disperse rapidly and cause no significant danger to marine life or create any extreme threat to the fishing industry.

Until now, however, there has been little actual experience of what happens to the brine when it is discharged into the marine environment in large quantities.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) has been responsible to the Department of Energy for developing and implementing an environmental monitoring program to analyze the effects of the evacuation of brine from salt domes. BRIMS, a key component of this program, will be initially employed in the Bryan Mound dispersal operation.

NORDA's Ocean Technology Division was selected to provide the BRIMS system because of its advanced work and expertise in the design and development of ocean measurement systems. Another factor was that NORDA had the in-house network for processing, capability and equipment to produce a highly sophisticated system that could be placed in operation in the short time required to meet the pipeline construction schedule.

The discharge pipeline is three feet in diameter and runs out 12½ miles to sea from the Texas coast. To protect it from damage it is installed three feet below the sea floor.

The last 3,000-foot section contains 52 ports or openings (30 of which will be initially activated) for discharging the brine into the sea. The main component of the BRIMS monitoring systems is a cylindrical buoy 14 feet in diameter and seven feet high that is anchored over one of the ports in a three-point chain moor.

Connected to the buoy by sea floor cables is an array of sensors, each buoyed up about eight feet off the sea floor. These sensors will record salinity, temperature and currents.

A brine flow sensor will be placed inside one of the discharge ports to provide positive assurance that the brine being pumped in at the shore end is all reaching the seaward end.

The sensor array field has been designed to minimize the possibility of entanglement with fishing trawl nets. The sensors have completely smooth surfaces to allow trawl nets to slide over them, and the heavy sensor cables will settle beneath the sea floor.

On top of the main surface buoy there is an eight-foot high structure containing a telemetry system capable of transmitting 62 channels of multiplexed data. The data will be telemetered to a shore-based station on an hourly schedule. Enough battery power will be provided to enable a six-month unattended operation.

The BRIMS system has been designed so that additional sensors can readily be added to the system or repositioned to a more desirable location. This will permit a rapid response to changing or evolving environmental measurement requirements.

One of the uses of BRIMS will be to validate a computerized mathematical model developed by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for NOAA which simulates the dispersion of the plume for various oceanic conditions.

If the measurements made by BRIMS closely match the results of the prediction model, then the model could be used along the Texas and Louisiana coast.

Plans for the full development of BRIMS include a network for processing, storing and transmitting the data collected by BRIMS.

The assignment of the project of NORDA was logical because it is well within its mission and qualifications. One of NORDA's major functions is to develop and test new techniques for making complex measurements of the ocean environment required by the Navy's oceanographic program.

The BRIMS project, which builds on NORDA's past experience, is expected to lead to improved ocean instrumentation and data management technology for Naval applications. The Ocean Technology Division of NORDA is directed by Mr. Richard Swenson, and the BRIMS project manager is Mr. A.L. Sutherland.

Helene Giles wins area Century III competition

Helene Giles has won the Century III Leaders Scholarship competition at Coast Episcopal High School, according to Dr. Paul Shafer, headmaster.

The 17-year-old senior is now eligible to compete with other high school seniors throughout Mississippi for two $1,500 scholarships, two $500 scholarships, and also for a $10,000 national scholarship that will be awarded in a conference of state winners in historic Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia.

Ms. Giles triumphed in the local phase of the Century III Leaders program, a scholarship competition which emphasizes the future concerns of America. Students were judged on the basis of their leadership abilities, community involvement and score on a current events examination. To compete at the state level, Ms. Giles wrote a brief projection outlining what she thinks is one of America's future challenges and how it should be met.

Runners-up in the competition at Coast Episcopal High School are Steven Kau and Cynthia Fitzgerald.

Miss Giles, the daughter of Mrs. Helene Giles of Pass Christian and Dr. Thomas Giles of New Orleans, La., now competes with other high school winners from around the state for four scholarships and an opportunity for the $10,000 top national scholarship.

The two Mississippi winners will receive an all-expense-paid trip to the fourth annual Century III National Leadership Seminar in Williamsburg, March 7-10,

PREMATURITY
Prematurity threatens the health and survival of many newborns. The March of Dimes, working for the elimination of birth defects, encourages early prenatal care to reduce the risk of prematurity.

Last summer she attended Mississippi Girls' State where she was elected Nationalist Party Chairman. Ms. Giles plans to attend Newcomb College in New Orleans next fall.

Biloxi energy workshop set

The Mississippi Energy Office of the Department of Natural Resources will be sponsoring two types of residential energy conservation workshops in six locations in the state during December. One workshop is designed for lenders, appraisers, and real estate professionals; the other is aimed at builders and contractors in new residential construction. Both workshops are designed to bring energy management into the mainstream of residential housing transactions and construction.

Office of Energy Director Peter J. Walley pointed out that energy conserving improvements on an existing home can cut energy consumption by up to 30 percent and that on a new home, the figure is closer to 50 percent.

Workshop dates and locations are: December 4 - Tupelo-Ramada Convention Center, Hwy 45 North.

December 5 - Greenville-Mainstream Center, Washington County Fairgrounds.

December 6 - Jackson-Metro Ramada Inn, 120 at Ellis.

December 11-Meridian-Meridian Junior College, Hwy 19 North (Student Union Building).

December 12-Hattiesburg-University of Southern Mississippi (Student Union Building).

December 13-Biloxi-

Goodman wins main event as Bay boxers host first home match

By RICH ADAMS
Sports Editor
Joe Louis Goodman of the Bay-Kiln-Waveland Boxing Club

Club overcame Willie (Wild Man) White of the Saucier Boxing Club to win the main event of the local boxing club's first home match Saturday night at the Valena C. Jones Gymnasium in Bay St. Louis. Goodman delivered a fine combination of left hooks and right jabs as he racked the Southern Amateur Athletic Union Olympic Champion in the win.

In the second round Goodman scored a left hook which broke White's nose and hindered his boxing through the remainder of the three two-minute round bout.

Near the end of the fight White was dazed on his feet and was an easy target for Goodman, an Olympic hopeful from Pearlington.

White had Goodman cornered in the ring numerous times during the match, but the Pearlington pugilist fought his way from the ropes and scored with hooks and uppercuts to the bleeding face of the Saucier boxer.

In the semi-main event, Jerry Carson of the Bay-Kiln-Waveland Boxing Club was upset by Rodney Durhan of the Biloxi Boxing Club after going the distance of three one-minute rounds.

Carson was previously undefeated in the ring with five wins.

Carson was constantly on the defense, but scored numerous times in close punching action against his opponent.

"We were robbed," said Bay Head Coach John Wisenbunt after the fight.

In a featured event Stanley (Snakes) Christmas of the Bay-Kiln-Waveland Boxing Club showed professional style as he defeated George Bennett of the Fleet Reserve Boxing Club in his first ever match as an amateur.

Christmas paced himself well as he picked his punches carefully against his opponent, and fought out of the corner numerous times with sharp, hard-hitting blows.

The bout went the distance of three two-minute rounds. In the junior main event Saturday Todd Rooks of the weeks. Bess Owens of the Homesteaders is carrying the highest average in the league with Sonja Harp, also of the

Henry named to All-Star squad

By RICH ADAMS
Sports Editor

Hancock North Central's Lloyd Henry, a junior who excelled at the halfback and defensive secondary position this football season, has been named to the Gulf Coast Burger King All-Star team, according to Head Coach Irvin Favre.

Henry will be honored with 24 other Gulf Coast gridiron specialists Monday during a banquet at the Hilton in Biloxi.

Henry rushed for a total of 1,019 yards during the season and one post-season game, but was named to the All-Star team because of fine defensive play.

He is one of two juniors on the team, and the only student from Hancock North Central to be named to the team.

During the regular season Henry rushed 143 times for a total of 1,019 yards, scoring 10 touchdowns and a total of 66 points.

The junior running back also received eight passes during the season for 117 yards and one touchdown.

As a defensive linebacker Henry averaged five tackles per game for a season total of 51 tackles.

He was selected by the press as the co-winner of the Most Valuable Offensive Player award during the Wendell Ladner Bowl in November.

READY FOR ACTION-Chris Whisenhunt, a four-year-old 40-pound pugilist for the Bay-Kila-Waveland Boxing Club, warms up in the corner for his bout against Jason Moran Saturday night. The bout ended early as Whisenhunt first floored Moran in the opening seconds, only to be knocked down by Moran moments later to end the fight. Moran and his parents came to the bout from a small town north of Hattiesburg to participate in the match. Nicky Slade, right, coaches from the corner.

Wildcats record best start in 20 years

Pearl River College's Basketball Wildcats are off and running with a sparkling 5-1 record, the best start in the past 20 years.

"I'm really pleased," said Billy Holmes, the Wildcat head coach for the past two years. "We are becoming more and more consistent, and the freshmen on the team are beginning to fill our weaknesses."

The Wildcats opened with wins over LSUA, East Mississippi and Meridian before falling to the Gulf Coast Bulldogs, 77-73, in the Jones Invitational Tournament.

Pearl River then bounced back by trouncing host Jones 93-76 and Meridian 90-52.

In the Wildcats only loss of the year, Gulf Coast had to erase a 37-31 halftime lead and win by four. In the nip and tuck battle between the two nemesis Pearl River's Mike Francis and Troy Hall led all scorers with 25 and 20 points respectively.

Jones' men played perfect host in the tournament losing to the wildcats by 17 points. Jones trailed the Wildcats 42-34 at half and the PRC team pulled away in the second and final stanza.

Hall led all scorers with 22 points. Also in double figures for the Wildcats were Jimmy Richardson with 18, Eric Rogers with 17, George Russell with 12 and Mike Francis with 11.

Things went just as well for the Wildcats the third night of the tournament with Holmes'

Cats demolishing the Meridian Eagles by 38 points. PRC led by only five points, 33-28, at the half but pulled away to dominate the second stanza.

High point man for the Wildcats was Ron Brown with 22. Other Wildcats in double figures were Eric Rogers with 18 and George Russell with 11.

Pearl River began their south division this week (Tuesday night) against Southwest in the PRC Coliseum.

PRC places three on All-State

Pearl River College's Wildcats placed three players on the Mississippi Junior-South All-State squad.

Pat Posey, a graduate of Pearl River Central High School and PRC center; Brent Swindoll, a freshman punter and defensive back from Petal; and Defensive End Robert Lee Smith were named to the elite All-State team.

Posey, 6'1", 227, was named last week as the Wildcats Most Valuable Offensive Lineman and that vote of confidence was echoed by the coaches around the state.

Smith also topped the Wildcats' Most Outstanding Defensive Lineman honor, and again that judgement was seconded by the junior college coaches who played against Smith during the year. Smith was a stabilizing force behind the Wildcat defensive unit that allowed the opposition an average. Swindoll's performance in pressure situations were very impressive and his ability to kick out-of bounds deep in enemy territory was effective.

"All three players are very deserving of recognition," said J.C. Arban, the Wildcats head coach, "they did an outstanding job for the Wildcats all year long."

Pearl River had 14 players make All-State honorable mention. Included on the list were Rusty Highstreet, Doug Douglas, Anthony Jackson, Tim Dunaway, Kim Davis, John Wales, Adam Danner, and Pat Walls.

Also listed as honorable mention were: Ronnie Henslerling, Ricky Malone, Anthony Williams, Andy Coleman, Mark Summers and Joe Johnson.

Team Number 87 has not yet decided on a name, but is in third place.

Penny Francis has an 81 average and knocked out a 172 game.

Pat Wallace recorded a 211. Lucky Sevedns are holding on to the fourth place slot in the league, with Dianna Culotta recording a 180.

Margaret Evans holds the league handicap series with a 662.

Shears Delight is in fifth place with Helen Carter capturing high handicap game and Gloria Dorman above her average with a 188.

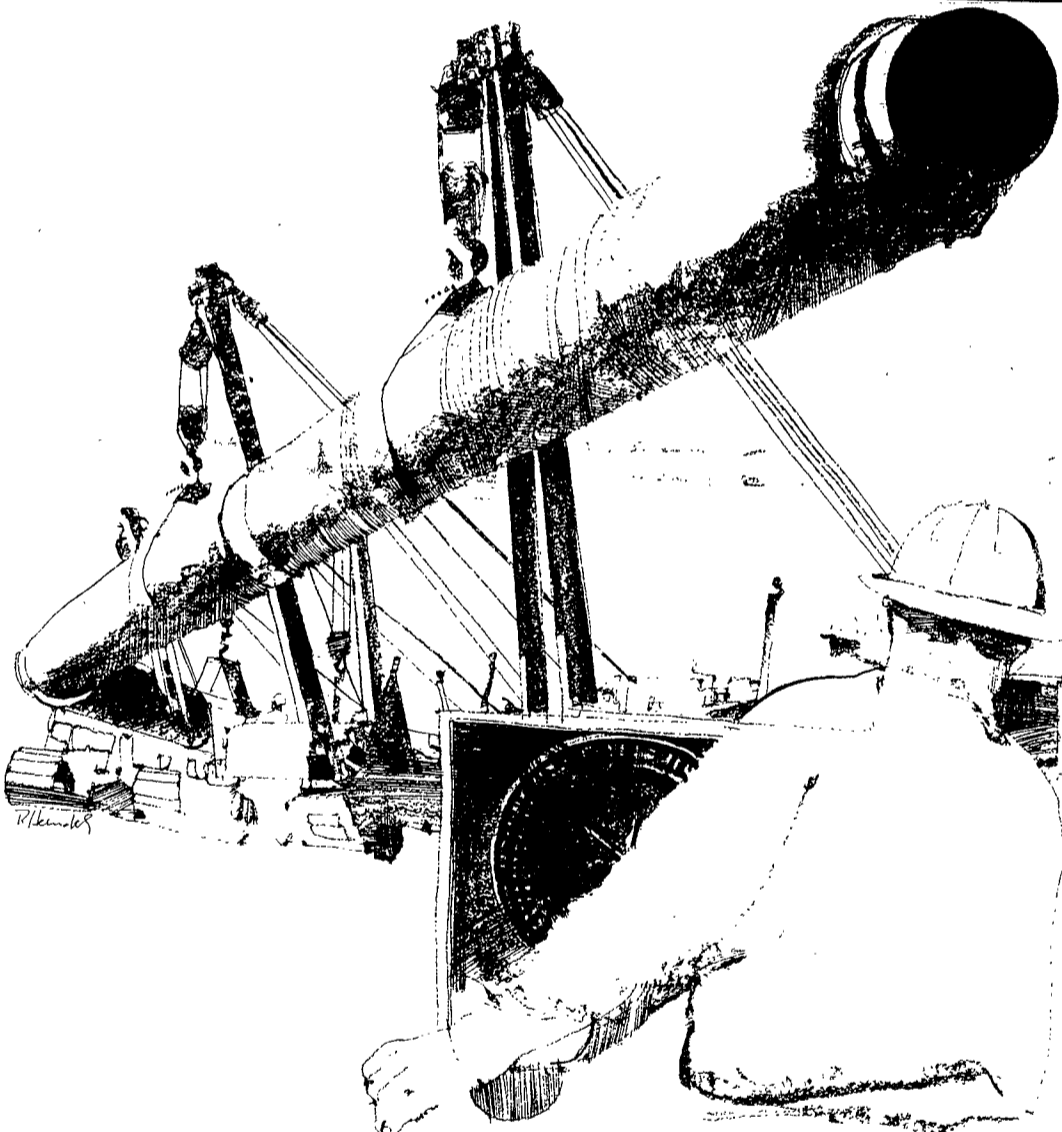

The Goof Offs are in sixth place as Mary Dempset hit a 174 with a 112 average.

Ruth's Pin Pushers are in seventh place as Donna Necaise scored a 212 during league play.

The Trouble Shooters are in eighth place as Debra Krankey had a triple score of 131's.

Ninth place holders are the Blankety-Blanks with Greer Toups shooting a 150 with a 100 average.

Lucky Ladies are in the cellar, but have potential as Becky Storey rolled a 207 game.

GAS TRANSMISSION LINES CONDUITS TO A CHANGING MARKET

Gas transmission lines which take years of planning and engineering, and cost millions to build, are really just big conduits.

They link thousands of customers to producing areas where newly-discovered gas is put up for sale. The movements of this market, in terms of price and availability, simply travel down the pipelines to the customer.

For many years companies like United Gas bought natural gas for interstate shipment in the market where the producers' sales price was limited by government regulation. Gas not sold in interstate commerce had no such price restriction. As the market price of natural gas began to rise, much natural gas was confined by producers to the intrastate market.

Now, however, new national legislation has brought sweeping changes to this complex situation. Producers of natural gas can now charge for gas sold in interstate commerce prices that are much more in line with the intrastate market. This incentive, in the truest tradition of our economic system, will result in more gas being available.

But it will cost more.

Gas transmission lines are, after all, just conduits to the market place, and what happens on one end affects what happens on the other.

BODY SHOT-Jerry Carson, left, previously undefeated for the Bay-Kila-Waveland Boxing Club, prepares to receive a blow to the stomach from Rodney Durban of the Biloxi Club during the semi-main event Saturday night. Carson was upset as the Biloxi boxer was handed the decision.

EXHIBITION MATCH-Bobby Murhead, right, scopes his opponent as they circle around the ring in an exhibition match at the Bay-Kila-Waveland Boxing Club's first home match at the Valena C. Jones Gymnasium.

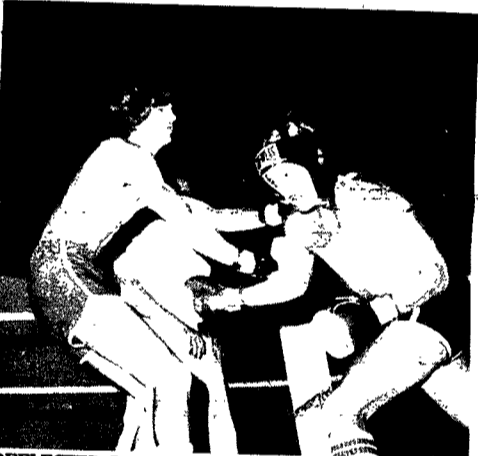

STARE DOWN-Nolan (Spider Man) Vince, right, of the Bay-Kila-Waveland Boxing Club, stares down his opponent during a bout at the Valena C. Jones Gymnasium Saturday night. Vince was defeated by the more experienced pugilist.

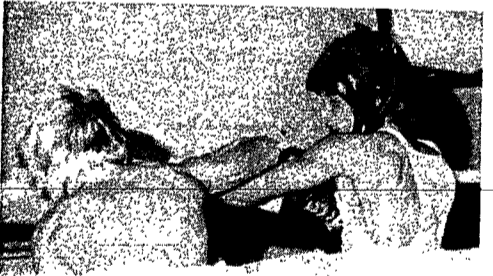

CROWDED STANDS-Approximately 150 people attended the Bay-Kila-Waveland Boxing Club's first home match in the Valena C. Jones Gymnasium Saturday night as local boxers took four of the seven scored matches they participated in. The match lasted some 2.5 hours, and the enthusiastic crowds apparently enjoyed the fast action in the ring.

Main Event.....

Bay-Kila-Waveland Club stopped Jeff Schowetz of the Saucier Boxing Club in the second round of a scheduled three-rounder.

Rooks violently attacked his opponent, throwing roundhouse right hand hooks unrelentingly until the referee stopped the fight in the second round when Schowetz appeared dazed.

A large crowd showed up for the event at the V.C.J. gymnasium, filling the bleachers in the balcony and piling into ringside seats to watch local competitors.

Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett awarded the Sportsman Trophy to Nicky Slade of the BKW Club. Slade is taking three months off from training due to a heart condition, and was slated to see action in the semi-main event at Saturday's match before the doctor told him not to box.

In other boxing action, Al Brignac of the BKW Boxing Club stopped J.J. Kropp in the first round of their match. Brignac delivered a series of jabs and hooks in putting away the Biloxi Club pugilist, using the advantage of added height and arm length to do away with Kropp.

In a special event, Keith Starita of Bay St. Louis lost a decision to John Gallardo of the Fleet Reserve Boxing Club in a three two-minute round bout.

Starita, a relative newcomer to the sport, was outclassed by the more experienced opponent.

Starita did put on a fine performance though, scoring numerous times while in close punch-outs with Gallardo.

Dr. John Levens, who served as the ringside physician, stopped a fight between BKW Boxer Burt Jeneau and Ken Farmer of the Saucier Club.

Jeneau said he wanted to continue with the bout, but the doctor advised the referee against doing so and the fight was stopped, making Farmer the victor.

overpowered the BKW boxer in the second round.

White, of the Saucier Club, was the more experienced boxer, but Vince held his ground in the bout.

Losing regular matches were Timmy LaFontaine, Matt Keel, and Dave Stringer.

In exhibition matches were Chris Whisenand, Steven and Bobby Murhead, and Keith Glass against Wayne Ulrich, all of the Bay-Kila-Waveland Club.

The boxing club is planning another match in the Disabled American Veteran Hall on Main Street in Bay St. Louis in late January, and plans to conduct a match in Pearlman at the Charles B. Murphy Gymnasium in February.

Youth Court Administrator Charles Carter and Slade coached the local boxers from the corner in Saturday's event.

Maj. Byron White commands at PRC

Pearl River College has a new Military Science instructor, Major Byron White who is replacing Major Thomas Housley who is now at the University of Southern Mississippi. Major White was previously at USM before coming to PRC.

Major White graduated with a B.A. in history from Pfeiffer's College in North Carolina, and acquired his master's degree in international relations from the Boston University.

White joined the military in November, 1963. He spent two years in Germany where he went to Officers Candidate School.

He also spent two years in Vietnam during the war, and was in Italy for two years.

His training includes various military schools, in the Jungle Warfare School, Nuclear Weapons Employment Command, and the Generals Staff.

Military Science class now includes Ranger Group which is taking advanced and working along with the 20th Special Forces group at Camp Shelby in Hattiesburg.

The other group is the Drill Team who specialize in fancy military drills.

White confirms he is not an Army recruiter—all of his classes are voluntary.

Rangers will meet with the Special Forces at the end of the year. Events coming up are a canoe trip, the Superstar competition next spring at Southern, which was a success last year.

A military ball will be in February at the Keeler Air Force Base in Biloxi.

White added that a large number of his students are women.

Pass home on Civic League tour

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Guy C. Billups is among residences included on the 20th annual Tour of Homes, a traditional event of the Christmas season sponsored by the Gulfport Civic League.

The Billups home, at 625 East Beach (Scenic Drive) in Pass Christian, is on the site of a 19th century mulberry farm where silkworms were raised.

Sad to relate, all the mulberry trees were uprooted by Hurricane Camille in 1969.

However, the house, originally built in the early 1800's, withstood the fury of the storm and today represents the epitome of gracious southern living.

It was remodeled in the 1920's, at which time the attic was made into a spacious upstairs floor with millwork created by a local craftsman.

A white picket fence surrounds the house and grounds include a spacious lawn with well-tended shrubs and flowers.

A wide front porch is screened to admit the cool gulf breezes and is furnished with a white wicker swing and chairs.

Of interest is a plant table made from the hatch cover of an old ship. The porch on the east side of the house is glass enclosed and is colorful and inviting with green carpeting, wicker furniture, and many flourishing house plants.

Two wrought iron tables at one end provide a place for informal coffees, cards, or letter writing.

The gold-carpeted foyer just off the porch contains a Imuri plant on a stand, facing a marble-topped table with a gilt mirror above it.

This hall opens into a central hall where a curving staircase leads upstairs where one can see an old armoire created by Mallard, a renowned New Orleans craftsman.

A huge round marble-topped table of solid oak stands in the center of the hall, displaying a bronze statue of Boy with Birds. A very old grandfather clock ticks away against the wall.

To the right of the foyer is the family room which features mounted tarpon and sailfish which Mr. Billups brought home from deep sea fishing trips.

One wall displays pictures of his many catches.

Built-in shelves on either side of the brick fireplace contain trophies attesting to his skill as a fisherman.

On the chimney is a very large mounted sailfish above a framed map showing the site of the catch. A gun rack on one wall is topped by a mounted fish tail.

The room is cozy with soft couches and easy chairs, round glass coffee table, and TV center.

The fourth wall of the room is covered with family pictures. The soft drapes feature a pheasant print.

In the small hallway leading from the den to the dining room is a fascinating Venetian chest and a lighted curio cabinet displaying to advantage Mr. Billups' Royal Worcester porcelain fish collection.

The large dining room features a Queen Anne dining table and breakfast room from England, containing china and crystal. A buffet displays a silver service, with a large mirror above it. An interesting antique wine cooler stands under the windows which form one wall of the room, overlooking the lawn and pool area to the rear.

The wallpaper presents a mural of cool springs, blossoming trees, rushes, birds, and butterflies.

The kitchen is a marvel of convenience with spacious work area, built-in bar-b-que grill, tiled floor, and double windows looking out over the back lawn.

The wallpaper featuring birds and flowers makes a perfect flow from dining room to kitchen to breakfast room. The latter contains many old pieces collected through the years by the Billups family.

The built-in cabinets are made of cypress. Mrs. Billups uses one corner of the cheery room for her secretary desk at which she manages the affairs of the household.

The master bedroom overlooks the Gulf of Mexico, with french doors opening onto a veranda.

Of special interest is the large four-poster bed with a slipper bench at its foot.

A loveseat, matching the bench, is placed before a marble topped coffee table.

Another very old and interesting piece is the tall marble dresser. Its mirror has an intricately carved frame, topped with a seated cupid. The room is cooled with a ceiling fan which is also a "frame" for the chandelier.

The living room features an old Louisiana plantation piece...a breakfast built on the plantation by slaves in the 1700's.

Also of special interest are the two Drysdale paintings and a portrait of Mrs. Billups.

On the mantel above the fireplace are a Sevres porcelain clock and candelabras.

The mirror above the mantel belonged to Mrs. Billups grandmother in Bay St. Louis.

After Hurricane Camille it was repaired and refinished, and given to her for her home.

A desk in one corner of the room is the lower part of an old secretary, supposedly from Jefferson Davis' home, which belonged to Mrs. Billups' mother. (The top part of the desk was smashed as a result of Camille.)

A curio cabinet contains statuettes of the Madonna collected from the countries visited by the owners. Of special note is a woodcarving of Our Lady of Guadalupe from Mexico.

A grand piano dominates one corner of the room. The soft blue and white of the drapery, carpeting, and furniture make this room an oasis of coolness and serenity.

Mrs. Billups will be assisted in receiving the visitors by Mrs. Oscar O'Neal, hostess; Mrs. Bena Hill; Mrs. Louis Gele; Mrs. Harold Perlman; Mrs. William Peden; Mrs. Carson Pyle; Mrs. Harvey Sale; and Mrs. Henry Stone, all members of the Civic League.

A donation of $2 for each ticket will provide admission to all four of the homes featured on the Holiday Tour of Homes.

Tickets may be obtained from members of the Civic League or purchased at the door of any home on the day of the tour.

The homes may be visited in any order. Each house will be identified by markers.

In addition to the Billups home, homes to be shown include those of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Puckett, 1118 East Beach Boulevard, Gulfport; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Bullock, 5 Pinewood Court, Northwood Hills, Gulfport; and the Hospitality House, home of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Galloway, 403 St. Charles, Northwood Hills, Gulfport.

The accompanying map shows the location of each home.

Tour date is Sunday, Dec. 9 from 2 until 5:00 p.m.

The Holiday Tour of Homes is the only fund-raising project of the Civic League for its work in aiding handicapped children and adults of Harrison County, contributing to the Easter Seal Campaign, assisting at the Crippled Children's Clinic at the Coast Community Hospital monthly, sponsoring summer "camperships" for underprivileged children, and supplying needed equipment at other centers involved in caring for the handicapped.
